ACIST Medical Systems Appoints Bradley Fox as New President and CEO

EDEN PRAIRIE, MINN. (June 12, 2017) — ACIST Medical Systems, a Bracco Group Company, today announced it has named Bradley Fox as president and chief executive officer to lead the company’s global operations and strategic direction. He will also serve as president and chief executive officer for its sister company, HLT, Inc., a clinical phase medical device company focused on transcatheter aortic valve replacement therapy.

“I am honored and thrilled to be joining ACIST Medical Systems and HLT, and look forward to working closely with our talented teams as we continue to establish our position as an industry leader in the global interventional and diagnostic cardiology market and expand our portfolio of advanced technologies,” said Fox.

Fox is an accomplished business leader with more than 20 years of experience in the medical device industry. He joins ACIST after spending the last four years at Bard Access Systems where he led product and business development initiatives in strategic marketing. Prior to his time at Bard Access Systems, Fox held several executive management positions — including his most recent role as General Manager — at GE Healthcare, bringing with him a wealth of knowledge and expertise in global cardiovascular market and supply chain strategy, product innovation and portfolio management.

“With a strong knowledge of our space and his repeated high performance across a wide variety of medtech industries, we’re very excited about having Brad join the team and lead ACIST into a new era of growth,” said Fulvio Renoldi Bracco, Chairman of ACIST and CEO of Bracco Imaging S.p.A.

He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Biomedical Engineering and Electrical Engineering from Duke University and Master of Business Administration degree from the University of Chicago.
